

ASSISTANTS – REAL ESTATE BROKERAGE

Purpose: To explain the responsibilities real estate professionals have to supervise assistants and the tasks assistants may perform and not perform.

This bulletin applies to all real estate brokerages, brokers, associate brokers, associates, and assistants of any of these individuals.

An individual must hold a licence from the Real Estate Council of Alberta (RECA) to trade in real estate. Real estate professionals often hire individuals to work directly with the real estate professional. These individuals may or may not hold a licence with the real estate professional's brokerage. If the individual holds a real estate licence, they can perform any activities a real estate professional performs. If the individual does not hold a licence with the real estate professional's brokerage, their activities are much more restricted.

Assistants that do not hold a licence must not trade in real estate. Their activities must focus on administrative tasks.

Real estate professionals employing assistants must ensure:

- to assign tasks assistants are competent to perform
- not to assign tasks that requires a real estate licence
- disclose to clients, customers, public, and industry professionals the assistant does not hold a licence to trade in real estate
- ensure assistants identify themselves as assistants to their employer
- supervise the activities of the assistant
- ensure that the assistant complies with brokerage policies and procedures

Brokers must:

- oversee activities of assistants in the employ of the brokerage and brokerage professionals
- approve the hiring of assistants
- establish policies and procedures regarding assistants
- ensure the assistant understands any policies for client confidentiality
- enter into a confidentiality agreement between the brokerage and the assistant

- enter into a written agreement outlining the assistant's job description and remuneration formula with a copy in the brokerage files

Tasks unlicensed real estate assistants may do: (under broker, associate broker, associate supervision):

- answer and forward calls
- write ads for their employer's approval and place them with the media
- maintain and update the employer's website
- prepare promotional information and materials for their real estate professional's approval
- submit listings and changes to the applicable listing service and/or database
- witness documents that the real estate professional presents to the client or customer
- assemble documents for closing or incoming/outgoing tenants
- secure public documents from the courthouse, utilities services, etc.
